Our recipe for success

At Münster School of Business, we are highly committed to providing quality education. This is embodied by our practical needs-based approach to teaching – one of our particular strengths, being a university of applied sciences. We continuously collaborate with companies in practice-oriented projects and adapt our teaching to the current needs of the business world. The result is a constant process of knowledge transfer and application-oriented research. In this process, we see innovation as a collaborative and co-creative effort, achieved together with our partners.

Being an internationally-oriented business school, we actively cooperate with partner universities throughout the world. We also attach great importance to our students receiving hands-on, society-relevant skills. We actively involve our students by means of course projects, case studies, business games and group exercises. This allows students to be at the heart of the learning process.
